The Democrats of Indiana will hold a State Convention on January 8th, 1877.

ABRAHAM LINCOLN said that "the party that can elect a President can inaugurate him." It remains to be seen whether the Democratic party will inaugurate Tilden.

Gov. HAYES says he will quietly submit if the lawful authorities decide in Tilden's favor. Of course he will; but he knows that the "lawful authorities" have not the remotest idea of counting him out.

We may now understand why it is that Grant has persisted in keeping bad men in power in South Carolina, Florida and Louisiana. No other sort of timber would do to make returning Boards of. Without the intervention of this machinery for manufacturing frauds, Tilden would to-day have 204 electoral votes instead of 185.

The main purpose of the Edmunds' resolution is to give the Senate jurisdiction over the Southern elections, so that Republican committees may get to work in South Carolina, Florida and Louisiana, to offset the investigations of the Democratic committees appointed by the House. The Democratic reports will maintain that the facts showed that Gov. Tilden carried these three disputed States, and was swindled out of their votes by rascally Returning Boards. The Republican reports will assert that Gov. Hayes carried all those States on a fair and legal count. The division of public opinion will thus be kept up, and the Republican programme promoted.

POLICY OF THE SOUTH.

Mr. Hewitt, spokesman for the National Democratic party, has proclaimed that Samuel J. Tilden has been elected President of the United States. With equal formality Mr. Chandler, the mouth-piece of the National Republican party, has declared that Rutherford B. Hayes has been chosen President of the United States. And old man Peter B. Cooper—we must not neglect him—says if he has not been elected to succeed Ulysses S. Grant he would like to know who in the deuce has been. The case of all three is now before the people, and the question arises who shall be inaugurated.

The Republican and the Democratic parties stand apart, each claiming the Presidential office for its champion. They are as diametrically opposed on this question as the poles. There is a broad division of opinion; and every hour the breach widens, instead of closing as wished for by all the law-abiding, peace-loving people of this land. The difficulty, apparently, is irreconcilable, except upon the basis of submission on the part of the Democrats. That is the present outlook. It is needless to shut our eyes to the fact.

As rapidly as the whirl of events can bear us along, we are approaching a grave and dangerous juncture in the affairs of the nation. A collision between the two gigantic forces represented by Hewitt and Chandler must inevitably occur, unless—and here is our hope of a peaceful settlement of the difficulty—unless the people of the Northern States, Republicans as well as Democrats, call a halt to the reckless politicians at Washington, and exert fair play and honesty.

The Democrats of Indiana have taken the initiative step. The State Committee calls upon the people, irrespective of party, to meet in convention and express the popular judgment that constitutional government shall be maintained, and the country's welfare kept paramount to every other consideration. This step will probably be followed in every Northern State; so that there will go up a voice from the masses all over the country, which even the Mortons, and the Chandlers, and the Sher-mans will not dare to disregard.

In view of this move in the North, what should be the policy of the South? Shall we sit still with silent tongue and folded hands throughout this momentous crisis? Or, shall we be heard, demanding that the vote of the people shall not be defeated by fraud, and that the Constitution of the United States shall be maintained?

We believe that our true policy is to be profoundly quiet; to stand with folded arms, and watch, and wait—leaving this matter to be settled by the Northern people. If the Democratic party of the North and West is not strong enough to secure a fair and honest and peaceable settlement of the matter in dispute, it certainly is not in the power of the Democratic party of the South to do it. On the contrary, for the South to move as Indiana is doing, would insure the triumph of Hayes; for the predominant sentiment of the North is against us—the loss of seventy Congressmen, and the fact that there is but one Democratic Legislature north of Mason & Dixon's line, are enough to demonstrate this. In the eyes of a majority of those who have in hand the settlement of this difficulty we are "rebels" still.

It should be distinctly understood at Washington that the Southern people do not want war under any circumstances; and that in any appeal to arms, they must be "counted out." They want peace. They have had enough of war, and they well know, from the bitterest experience, that civil war is the remedy far no wrong, but an aggravation of all wrongs.

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE.

We present elsewhere a letter signed "Farmer" upon the subject of the usury law. It is not our purpose now to criticize the views of this writer, but we desire simply to avail ourselves of this opportunity of stating a few things in regard to correspondence and communications which appear in the News.

Free discussions in the public prints on pending questions of moment, we regard as one of the very best means of eliciting truth, developing arguments pro and con, ascertaining the sentiments of the people, and arriving at just conclusions with respect to the various perplexing questions before the country.

Just at the present time, leaving out of view the Presidential problem, the attention of North Carolinians should be intensely directed to the consideration of such grave questions as these: How shall the negro-governed counties of the east be ruled? What shall be the form of county government? Shall magistrates be appointed by the Legislature? What must be done with the public debt? Shall the usury law be repealed? How shall the western railroad be completed? and so forth, and so on.

Upon these and kindred topics, and upon all subjects of general interest, we invite correspondence, reserving all the while as a matter of course the right to reject that which we judge to be unworthy of publication. We do not by the act of publishing endorse the sentiments or vouch for the facts contained in correspondence or communications. The opinions of the News are only to be found in the editorial columns. For instance, we print to-day a letter advocating the repeal of the usury law; to-morrow we may print another communication, perhaps, taking exactly the reverse view. What the News thinks about it, must be looked for in the editorial column, and nowhere else. The real names of those who write under assumed names, are as a rule withheld from the public; they are secretly withheld whenever it is proper to do so.

Writers should always bear in mind that "brevity is the soul of wit." Terse, vigorous articles compressed into small space are of far more practical value than those which are spun out in elaborate language. One of the highest missions of the Press is that of fostering discussion and promoting investigation whereby the bottom facts of things in controversy are reached. In this way truth is brought to light. Where mind combats mind, and interest clashes against interest, there is not much room left for falsehood. With the truth thus evoked, the newspaper can go on to perform that higher and nobler mission of a free press—the duty of crystallizing and reflecting enlightened public opinion.

INAUGURATION OF HAMPTON.

The installation of General Hampton as Governor of South Carolina is the beginning of the end of the difficulty in that State. With two Governors exercising the duties of chief magistrate of the commonwealth, matters must come to a head very quick. A direct conflict of jurisdiction is inevitable; and we shall soon see who holds the trump card.

In this so-called Republic, the voice of the country—the wishes or the will of the people, is not of very great consequence. It is to Washington that we must look to find out who shall govern South Carolina. The bayonet, not the law, will in all probability be the arbiter between Hampton and Chamberlain.

The most important of all them, in this connection, is this: Whom will Grant sustain, Chamberlain or Hampton? Even while we write that question may have been determined at the White House, and the fate of our sister State sealed, for the present at least.

We have little hope that Grant will recognize Hampton. He has given no evidence of such a purpose. On the contrary he has used the army to inaugurate and protect Chamberlain. No spasmodic sense of patriotism or common honesty is likely to seize upon him, and induce a change in his tyrannical course.

PERSONAL.

Charles B. Pratt, Democrat, was elected Mayor of Worcester last Tuesday.

F. O. Prince, who has been elected Mayor of Boston last Tuesday, has been for many years Secretary of the National Democratic Committee.

Mrs. Julie Barreiras, well known in art circles as a portrait and figure painter, while superintending the shaking of carpets on the roof of her house at St. Louis, Monday, fell through the skylight to the floor below, and died ten minutes afterwards from concussion of the brain.

An unknown hater of Louis Napoleon has badly mutilated a picture in the Parisian Luxembourg, by the celebrated Meissner. It represented the late Emperor at the head of his staff. His head was almost entirely cut out. The picture was similarly damaged three years before.

It has fallen to Lord Cairns, the present Lord Chancellor of England, to appoint six Judges of the High Court of Judicature at salaries of $25,000 a year, and four of these he selected were political opponents. Lord Cairns is a Northern Irishman, and graduated at Trinity College, Dublin.

Mr. Charles Rowe, the champion of female scholars, has another subject. Miss Sarah Purchase Griffith, a young English woman, who has been educated at Fontenaybleau, has passed the matriculation examination of Paris, and will attend the Sorbonne Lectures in order to obtain a licentiate's degree in natural sciences.

Congressman Alexander H. Stephens is regaining his strength and recovering from his rheumatic troubles. He takes daily exercise now on crutches in the hotel corridors. He anticipates taking an active part in the business of the session, and as chairman of the Committee on Coinage, Weights and Measures, will have a comfortable room assigned him.

The Rev. Dr. Samuel C. Jackson, who has been Acting State Librarian in Massachusetts for the last quarter of a century, has resigned, and Oliver Warner will succeed him. Mr. Warner is the unfortunate Secretary of the Commonwealth who lost his renomination, after twenty years' service, because he allowed the sergeant-at-arms to give him some of the worn-out carpets from the State House.

POLITICAL NOES.

Brooklyn Argus: It is said that the influence of the example of the Louisiana returning board has been so demoralizing in New Orleans that a man there is told a lie now in order to be believed.

The votes given to Watts, the Oregon Postmaster, for the office of Presidential Elector, were, according to all the judicial and parliamentary precedents, dead votes, or rather, no votes at all. Gov. Grover, as in duty bound, gave the certificates to the three candidates who had the largest number of real votes. It is supposed that two of those persons were Republicans and one was a Democrat. Could Governor Grover have properly done otherwise?

New York World: If the Republican managers were capable of changing the letter of Senator Robertson refusing to be a candidate for re-election before the Mackey Legislature of South Carolina, should make them blush. He has been the distinctly honest and upright man of the party in his State, and now he declares the body which has set the courts at defiance and usurped the government to be a set of usurpers from whose hands no honest man can accept honors without pollution.

Among the charges against King George, of England, contained in the Declaration of Independence, were these:

"He has dissolved representative houses repeatedly for opposing with manly firmness his invasions of the rights of the people."

"He has created a multitude of new offices, and sent hither swarms of officers to harass our people and eat out their substance."

"He has kept among us in times of peace standing armies without the consent of our Legislatures."

"He has affected to render the military independent of and superior to the civil power."

"For quartering large bodies of armed troops among us."

"For abolishing the free system of English laws in a neighboring province, establishing therein an arbitrary government."

Cannot Grant be convicted on all of these charges?

One million, seven hundred and forty thousand dollars ($1,740,000) of the first mortgage bonds of the Carolina Central Railway were recently sold in New York at fifteen cents on the dollar, and two million, five hundred and twenty-two thousand five hundred ($2,522,500) of the second mortgage bonds were sold in a lump at two hundred dollars for the entire parcel, being about eight cents for each $100 bond.

LETTER FROM LOUISBURG.

Cotton Buyers from Boston—Prisoners Run Over the Jailer and Escaped—Double Marriage, &c.

(Correspondence of Daily News.)

LOUISBURG, N. C., Dec. 14. Mr. Editor:—We have two gentlemen, Messrs. Darling and Folsom, of Boston, Mass., are here buying cotton for shipment to factories in and around Boston. This gives our streets a lively aspect and our farmers are delivering the article freely, at from 10 to 10 1/2 cents.

We have been particularly unfortunate with our new ten cent when dollar fall. One day this week, accompanied by N. M. Joyner, as guard, went into the jail to give them dinner, but the prisoners broke out by knocking down both Joyner and Hawking and made their escape. Two have since been captured in town.

We had a double marriage in town last night. Miss Lela Huff to Mr. W. B. Williamson, and Miss Martha Jane Joyner to Mr. George Miles, from Warren county, Elder F. L. Reid officiating. Indications of Christmas are upon us. C. M. W.

The Usury Law.

To the Editor of the News:

In your last issue of a few days ago you invite an expression of sentiments in regard to the repeal of the usury law. As one of the people—a common farmer—and not personally affected by the usury law—as I neither borrow nor lend money—I would like to express my views on the subject, which I think are the views of the masses of the people in the west, and perhaps in this State.

1. The usury law as passed by our last Legislature was a decided error, and it has worked injury to the material prosperity of the State.

2. It is wrong in principle.

3. It discriminates against our own people and in favor of the National Banks and others.

4. It has been the means of breaking up and ruining many honest farmers, who let alone would have finally worked out of debt on money borrowed at 10 per cent and even a higher rate.

5. The penalty attached to its violation is entirely out of all proportion to the magnitude of the offense. The above are only a few of the objections to the law question and they can be fully sustained to the satisfaction of any unprejudiced mind. Your Concord friend struck the right nail on the head when he stated in his paper that this matter ought to be left to regulate itself according to the law of supply and demand. Let the press speak out on this subject. I have thrown out these general statements in the hope that the attention of the public may be drawn to this subject. The law as it now stands amounts almost to an entire prohibition against our people borrowing money from a citizen of our own State.
